

An update on your February mini distribution

We wanted to let you know that this February mini distribution contains additional payments for some online music services and live performances. This means you may receive more money in this distribution than you were expecting.

We know how important your royalties are to you, so we have been busy working hard to release payments held from previous distributions which we detailed on our live distribution page in December. Therefore, in addition to the usual payments, you may see several online services including Amazon Music, Apple Music, Apple iTunes, Deezer, Google Play, Spotify and YouTube. You may also see some historical live performance monies included.

Your next main distribution will be in April. In the coming months, we will update our live distribution page which will give you a view of what will and won't be included in that distribution.

Thanks,

Member Services
PRS for Music